
Reflections on 25 Years of Collecting Japanese Art

A collector's journey from Silver Spring to New York and beyond

Introduction to Japanese Art

- My interest in Japanese Art began at the bookstore while still in graduate school with me learning more about the Japanese Sword through reading of these three books:
 - Japanese Swordsmanship by Gordon Warner & Donn F. Draeger
 - The Craft of the Japanese Sword by Leon Kapp, Hiroko Kapp, Yoshindo Yoshihara
 - The Connoisseur's Book of Japanese Swords by Kokan Nagayama

Early Years of Collecting:

I became interested and actively collecting tsuba once I obtained my first real job as a biologist.

What drew me into collecting tsuba initially was I found them to be a bit more affordable and therefore much more approachable than collecting a complete Japanese sword.

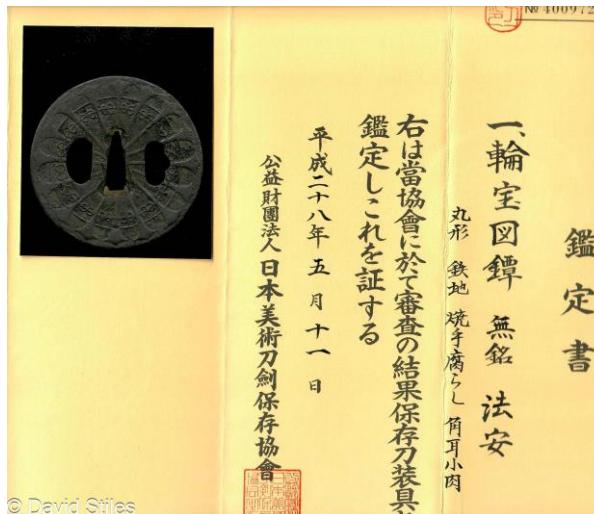

This led my Japanese wife to use the nickname “Tsuba Otaku”.

Words of Wisdom and Suggestions to Fellow Collectors

- Find out what you want to collect by being actively engaged in the study and learning process.
- Seek unbiased educated opinions about pieces in your collection, before and after acquisition. An organized and structured way to do this is through written formal appraisal (shinsa 審査).
- Keep a focused collection that is of a manageable size based upon who are and the stage of life you are in.

Future Goals for my Collection:

1. Reduce, focusing, and upgrading the collection before my retirement and move to Japan.
2. Deepening my research and sharing knowledge to foster a lively collecting community within the hobby.

Q&A

Closing thought: “Collecting is not just about objects—it’s about stories, connections, and historical appreciation.”
